1. Location

Immediately NW of the Danube River kilometer stone 1864. The fenced-in winter harbor and a small shipyard are northwest of the oil harbor.

2. Expansion

The oil harbor is being enlarged. The building material comes by rail. About 300 workmen are assigned to this construction work.

3. Oil shipments

Oil shipments come from Rumania by tankers on the Danube River and are transshipped at this harbor.

4. The three tank stations for transshipments:

a. The old tank station is at the entrance into the winter harbor. It consists of seven above-ground cisterns, each of 40,000 gallons volumetric capacity. The cisterns have camouflage paint.

b. The new tank station still under construction is between the winter harbor and the oil harbor. Five cisterns were built deeply into the ground and are said to be larger than those of the old station. The crude oil is pumped from these two tank stations into railway tank cars and shipped to the nearby refinery.

c. A third tank station is opposite the old station at the winter harbor. Here the crude oil is pumped directly from the tanker into the railway tank cars.
